POWERTOOL RECORDS

A Powertool Records Compilation 2012

An exciting mixed bag of Powertool Records' artists are currently touring the country promoting the album release and this Thursday Come Down Kid, Nick Raven and Brother Love will be performing live instore at Penny Lane.

Groundbreaking compilation 'Here Come the Bulletholes' came out in 2003, and while it wasn't the first release on Powertool Records, it was undoubtedly the launching pad for what has become one of NZ's finest underground indie labels. Hailed as "a great slice of the Auckland music scene" (The Press), it captured an exciting time and some great songwriting, with tracks by local heroes Mary, Cabbage Bomber, the Demi Whores, Voom and Rainy Days to name but a few.

Powertool Records has now reached number 4 in the critically acclaimed series, and 11 years on, with 'Bulletholes 4: Exploring the Unknown', the horizons have expanded considerably. In addition to an abundance of local tracks, the album showcases some of the international artists who have joined the Powertool Records family. Attics and Cellars (Jason Zumpano from Zumpano, Destroyer, Sparrow...), Rough Church, The Black Watch and Azalia Snail hail from the ever-expanding USA Powertool roster. New Zealand goodness can be heard from legends such as Sandra Bell, Brother Love, Gold Medal Famous, Vorn, A. J. Sharma and One Man Bannister (ex-Sneaky Feelings' Matthew Bannister) - plus a whole toolbox more from the length and breadth of the country.
